Mastroberardino Falanghina del Sannio 2016

Rated 91, Natalie MacLean, October 18, 2018

"A crisp, fresh, mouth-watering Italian white wine from the Mastroberardino family made from the regional indigenous grape Falanghina, first made by the ancient Romans. Aromas of lime zest and white grapefruit. Pair with shellfish."

"Take a little trip up to Campania through the lens of this lovely and talented falanghina. The varietal extension is firm and focused with fruit wrapped up tight in its acidulated maritime shell. The style is precise and intent to keep things moving at a slow and deliberate pace. Some secondary notes of savour are on the horizon and I'm betting they too will be worth getting to know. Drink 2018-2022".

"Bright light straw colour. Very pleasant, mineral-tinged, ripe lemon-applemelon puree nose with no oak. Fairly dry, medium-light to light bodied, elegant, fairly tangy, fresh, ripe lemon-apple-melon flavours with a lingering, high acid, mineral-tinged finish."

Rated 89, John Szabo, WineAlign, August 2018

"Modestly fruity, but this is more about the smoky-stony, earthy character in the volcanic Campanian idiom. Acids are appealing sharp and bright, and a genuine salinity engenders further salivation. No oak present. Solid length, too. A wine of character, regionally representative, well made."

Rated 88, David Lawrason, WineAlign, September 2018

"This has a nicely pure nose of lemon blossom, grapefruit, melon and a hint of herbality. It is medium-full bodied, fairly smooth with a dry, hottish finish. The length is very good to excellent."
